

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

- A method for quantifying risk of fraud associated with a purchasing card transaction includes obtaining a charge-back history associated with a consumer involved in the purchasing card transaction; and determining a risk score based on the charge-back history. In one embodiment of the invention, the step of obtaining a charge-back history includes obtaining a reason code for each charge-back included in the charge-back history.